OUR GOAL IS THE ATTAINMENT OF EXCELLENCE

PREFACE.

Most of the material in this volume was copied from newspapers in the collection of Miss Drusilla Cravens of Madison. Part of it was gathered from papers in the State Library.

It was collected in order to gain genealogical data, but there are some items of historical value, some events of interest which took place in Madison. These are indexed separately from the family names.

The streets in Madison had some names changed in recent years; Main st. in the early days is called Jefferson now; Main Cross is now Main St; First St. was called High St. & the River front was called Ohio St. Central Lane was called Cherry Lane in the early days.

In indexing names, often the same name occurs more than once on a page--it is only given once in the index.

This volume was collected and typed by Miss Mary Hill and presented through John Paul Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. G.W. Rains, Regent.

Jenny Lind Concert.

The great event has passed; Jenny, the Fearless, the Divine, the Nightingale, the everything else you may please to call her, has given the concert in Madison. The crowd was great, the singing greater, and the city of Madison the greatest. Of the singing of the gentlemen Signors, we have nothing to say; we do not understand Italian; the English songs sung by Jenny more than realized our expectations, but the singing did not intoxicate--Halderman of the other Courier was intoxicated. The house was full.

The Press was well represented, from Lawrenceburg, Aurora, Cincinnati, Rushville, Shelbyville, Columbus, & Indpls. Our country friends of the Press have had their ideas of matters & things enlarged by the visit to the metropolitan city.

Ma'llie Lind was taken from the boat to the concert in a carriage, consequently she stumbled over "no brick", and we are warranted in saying none of the corps Editorial carried away any such relic in their hats.

Dr. Ellis & his modest partner, Mr. Spann, & our John of the Journal represented the State Capital. The State Auditor insists upon knowing the location of the harbor on Cunningham bay, that he ran around one whole day in that neck of the woods with a pretty girl; just think of the Dr. running, oh my! To sum up we were delighted with the singing and so was everybody else.

A friend was asked what he thought of the singing; "I thought I had been in the house about 10 minutes and when I looked at my watch I had been there two hours; 8 to 10.
A vast crowd assembled on the wharf yesterday to welcome Jenny Lind. Cheers, firing of cannon & every other enthusiastic demonstration hailed her advent.

Apr. 18, 1851

Cincinnati paper says Jenny Lind sang in slaughter house in Madison; editor says citizens were not consulted; Wesley Chapel could have been obtained to seat 1200.
Young man's venture failed to remunerate on account of the unfortunate selection of building.

Apr. 19, 1851

Rushville Republican has article on Jenny Lind;
"We concluded to go to Madison on the 11th inst. to attend to a little business and while there to avail ourselves of the opportunity of hearing the world renowned songstress, Jenny Lind, the "Swedish Nightingale". We went--we saw--we heard.
Jenny Lind is a neat, clever, respectable looking girl, neither decidedly handsome nor uncommonly ugly, but about so-so; of medium height and size, possessing a clear, powerful voice, completely under her control, enabling her to leap from note to note, in the most difficult compositions, almost without regard to the number of "lines & spaces" which separate them, with the utmost ease, clearness and beauty. Add to this her power of warbling such notes as the music may require or the fancy dictate and you have, in our opinion, the secret of her wonderful success. The compass & clearness of her voice are indeed remarkable; but, at a hazard of being voted no judge, we venture to express the belief that we have heard voices possessing more sweetness & melody. The room in which we heard her sing, however, was poorly adapted to the purpose of a concert, and allowance should be made on that account.

She came up from Louisville on the Ben Franklin, and her approach was announced by the firing of cannon from the wharf and the ~~symphony~~ Wisconsin, which was answered from the Big Ben Franklin. The wharf-boats, wharf, Wisconsin, etc. were covered with people to get a glimpse of her as she passed from the boat to the splendid carriage in waiting to convey her to the hotel; but Jenny had too much good sense to gratify the curiosity of the gazers & women-worshippers by making her appearance. She kept to her stateroom, where we understood she had remained quietly on the passage from Louisville up, to keep from being gazed at by fools and toadies! We commend her for good taste and modesty.

She was warmly greeted by a large & brilliant audience on her appearance; her singing, particularly of "I know that my Redeemer liveth," and "The Bird Song", and "Sweet Home" was enthusiastically applauded. The audience were so well pleased with "The Bird Song" that they applauded until she was induced to reappear & repeat it for their gratification. Jenny puts on no foolish airs, and makes no unnecessary gesticulation. She sings right on and when she is done, retires with ease and grace behind the curtain. It appears to us there was a lack of pathos, an absence of feeling in her performance; too much science & too little nature; but that may have arisen from the character of the room in which she sang. She seemed to feel the sentiment and to enter into the spirit of "Sweet Home". We are no critic; we only give our impression.

Boletti and Salvi, who belong to the troupe, are good singers. The performance lasted about two hours.

We apprehend our Madison friends will date a new era from the 11th inst. They conducted themselves cleverly, and we rejoice with them that Madison has been converted into a city of note by the concert of Jenny Lind.

A poem; "Married"

To fulfil the 1st command
To multiply and fill the land
Was married in the month of May
On "Indian Kentuck" as Hoosiers say
By Henry Louis "Justice of the Peace
Wilson Washer & Miss Smith.
By J.H. Lochard--strange & odd
John L. Ames & Mary Todd;
By Dr. Tevis-Reverend Pub-
N. Demaree & Miss Rolason;
By a river justice-Hankins-
Isaac Conner & Miss Buchanan;
And what to all must seem quite strange
William Ferguson & Fanny James;
And 6th and last, so people say
William Melton & Miss Gourley.
Now to conclude-not wishing to tire-
I'll borrow a verse which I admire
"Tho youth has flown on rosy pinions,
And manhood claim their stern dominions,
Yet age does not all hope destroy
But yields some hours of social joy."

Buena Vista. Milton twp.

The Pioneers of Madison;

Some time since we expressed, through the Courier, the wish that the old citizen's pioneer society of Madison should be revived. No response has yet been made to the suggestion, other than the information annexed by our old friend, D. Blackmore, Jr.

The old settlers of Madison & vicinity organized a pioneer society in the winter of 1852. A social meeting was held & supper given at the Madison Hotel, on February 22, 1852. All old citizens & their families were invited. Much interest was taken by members in relating their early experiences. One gentleman present told of having danced with the girls, and of swinging on the wild grape vine swing at a merry-making just where the Madison Hotel now stands. Another told of old Judge B. marrying a rustic couple at midnight. The party drove up to the Squire's cabin. With a loud rap, the Squire was aroused. Up went the latch string of the door, & the Squire called out; "What is wanted?" "Squire, we want to be married," was the response. "Well then, stand up in the wagon", said the Squire. "John, do you & Sally want to be married?" "We do." "Do you make the request of your own free will?" "We do." "I then, in the name of God, pronounce you man & wife, Drive on!" Down went the latch string, & the old Squire, grumbling about being waked up by youngsters at midnight, slid back to his bed again.

Others, at the meeting referred to, spoke of scenes & incidents of the early settlement of the city; mentioned John Paul, Jonathan Lyon, & others who laid out Madison. Col. John Vawter acted as auctioneer, & sold the town lots at auction on the 11th & 12th of February, 1811. The Colonel stood upon a large poplar log, lying about where the Court House now stands, & announced to his audience that the proprietors would give to the county the ground of the public square forever, if used for county public buildings.

Another told of the pond the boys used to skate on, where the Walnut street market house now stands. In this way the pioneers enjoyed and passed away the evening of Feb. 22, 1852.

There has been since then but one more meeting of the society; Feb. 23, 1853. Since that time many of the old settlers of Madison have "gone home." Mr. Charles Woodward, at the meeting in 1853, feelingly said;

"My friends, at your next meeting some of you will ask, Where is Uncle Sam--where is Wharton--where is Charley? Gone Home!"

Methodism in Madison;

The 1st Methodist preaching place in Madison was in the McIntire home, on the corner of East & 2d St. in 1814. In the year 1816 the 1st Methodist church was built, on the corner of Main Cross (now Main) & East St. It was a small brick house, but large enough to meet the wants of the then sparsely settled town & country, except on rare occasions. In 1829 about 40 members of this church withdrew from it on account of a dislike to the Church government, formed what was then called the Radical Methodist church, and built a church on Third St. between West & Mulberry. The greater part of the forty, however, subsequently returned to the Methodist Episcopal Church.

In 1831 the church on the corner of East & Main Cross was vacated, & Wesley Chapel was built on Main Cross, near Poplar Lane, about the center of the city. The 1st sermon in Wesley Chapel was preached by Rev. Lewis Hurlbut, in 1831.

In 1842, Roberts Chapel, on 3d St. was organized by 62 members of Wesley Chapel, withdrawing on account of the choir. It was organized by Bishop Roberts, assisted by Rev. E.R. Ames & Rev. Allen Wiley. They occupied the old Radical church building until 1844, when they moved to their new church on 3d St. between Poplar Lane & Broadway.

St. John's church was organized in 1848, by the Conference appointing the Rev. J.S. Bayliss as pastor, it being the judgment of the Bishop that the Church should have a house of public worship at the east end of the city. It was built on the corner of East & Main Cross, the site of the 1st Methodist church & dedicated to the worship of God on the 7th of July, 1850, by the Rev. E.R. Ames.

On the 28th day of May, 1869 the Trustees of Roberts Chapel with the advice & consent of the members thereof, deeded the Church property of the Chapel to the Trustees of Trinity M.E. Church & the two church organizations became one, under the name of Trinity M.E. Church; W.E. McLeland, David G. Phillips, & John A. Child, acting as committee for Trinity M.E. Church & R.J. Hurlbut, Wm. Cordery & Jonathan Schooley as Committee for Roberts Chapel. The 1st meeting of the consolidated churches took place in Roberts Chapel, on the 4th day of June, 1869. Rev. W.T. Sanders & Rev. J.S. Donaldson preached in morning & evening.

The 1st Sunday school in Madison was organized in 1817. It was held in the McIntire house, corner of East & 2d, & was superintended by Mrs. McIntire. The 2d school was organized in 1819 in the Presbyterian church, & was superintended by Mrs. Wm. Thomas. Both of these schools were attended & managed by the different denominations then here.

The above facts have been condensed from a lengthy report furnished by R.J. Hurlbut, by whom they were prepared, at the request of the official Board, with the design of placing a copy of the same in the cornerstone of the new church. Ordered published by the church.

Article "Last of the Bangers"; sketch of Capt. John Armstrong, by Dr. M.Brooks, in Daily Courier, Jan. 30, 1877; next article will be on Early Steamboats.

STORY OF JOHN ARMSTRONG.

Condensed from article in Madison Daily Courier, Jan. 30, 1877. Written by Dr. M. Brooks.

John Armstrong lives on the river bank, nine miles above Madison, born at or near Havre de Grace, Maryland, about 1790; came with widowed mother to Kentucky in early childhood; settled in Montgomery County near Mt. Stirling. Lived in log cabin; suffered hardships-hunting-long mountain rides to Gills Mill on Salt Creek; a tributary of Licking River. When he was 16, his mother died; he was apprenticed to a cabinet maker; ran away to Maysville with another boy; finding a canoe, they came down the river, passing Cincinnati at night & landed at Sedansville about the year 1807. He found a home with a Mrs. Scott, in Hamilton Co. Ohio; then worked for a man named Moore for $4.00 a month. He saw the 1st steamboat at Cincinnati in 1812, "The New Orleans". Hired on barge "Konesuch" in 1814, Captain Martin Baum; a schooner rigged, 60 oars, capacity, 200 tons; left Cincinnati in November with cargo of Pork, flour, & whiskey; they reached New Orleans, Dec. 28th, ten days before the battle of New Orleans. John was small of size, so he was left on the barge as watchman, while the other men went to the defense of the city.

There were stations on the river to provision the boat for there were 50 to 60 bargemen; one station was at the mouth of the Cumberland, on the lower Ohio; the 2d, where Memphis now stands; the 3d, Walnut Hills, now Vicksburg. The cargo coming up was sugar, Molasses & cotton.

Coming up the "Cordelle" was used--strong cables of sufficient length fastened to the forward mast & 40-50 men would tow her along walking along the levee, if water was high. Then they came to a thick growth of trees; then "warping" was used; a line 300-400 yards long was taken forward in the yawl, & fastened to a tree; then the yawl would drop down to the barge, playing out the line, the end of which, after passing over a pulley at the bow, was hauled up on the barge; men would heave up walking the length of the deck; while they were heaving up the cable aft was again coiled up in the yawl & by the time she was up to where the first was made fast, another was planted above. Oars were not sweeps such as are now used on flat boats, but more like yawl oars; men standing inside cargo box, & working them at a single stroke. For upstream purposes they were of little use, only in crossing the river. This method carried hulk along at rate of 20 miles a day; the ordinary trip from Madison to N.O. took 20-25 days.

For 21 days (during flood) the crew never saw dry land; when they reached Memphis, they saw a thick growth of what they thought was polk; gathered it to have greens for dinner--it was poisonous & the men were all sick. The wages were $40.00 down trip & $100 up; the expenses were about $75.00 a day but with 200 tons there was a profit. Only one trip a year could be made. The cargo was discharged at Portland (Louisville); it was hauled around the falls & reshipped to Pittsburg on keelboats.

Armstrong walked home to rest; bought a horse, worked on farm till fall; then hired on barge "Defiance"; left Cincinnati in November, 1815; barge went aground at Blue River Island, stayed all winter, and arrived in New Orleans late in March; left in April 7th, arrived in Shippenport, July 4th, very hot weather; he walked home; hired on keelboat to Pittsburg, a smaller boat, with 8-10 hands. Then he made trip on the same boat to St. Louis; started to walk home on Indian trail & came through Kentucky. His next trip was on the barge "Cincinnati" to New Orleans; the next year he went on the "Ohio". Steamers came into use in 1818.

Article on "Early Steamboats."

The first steamer "Dean" was built at Pittsburg in 1806; about the same time Jonas Spoir built one about 20 miles above Frankfort, the "Scott." In 1810-11 the "Orleans" from Pittsburg passed down the Ohio; Lloyd's Steamboat Directory, 1850, says the Orleans was wrecked in 1814. "Comet" the 2d boat, went to New Orleans in 1814.

"Vesuvius", 1814, Captain John DeHart.

"Enterprise" used with troops at New Orleans.

"Washington", Captain Henry Shreve, hull built at Wheeling; engines at Brownsville, Pa. It was the first two decker. In 1817 it made the 2d trip to New Orleans; 41 days both ways; in 1853, the trip was made in 4 days & 9 hours.

The first boat built at Cincinnati was launched in 1818. Mr. Armstrong went on this boat as deck hand; Jacob Strader was Clerk; the pilot was named Price. The fare between Cincinnati & Louisville was $12.00 up & $6.00 down.

Madison Fire Department;

In the 30's some of the citizens banded themselves for mutual protection from fire. They had a little hand engine, "Alpha" better known as "Little Red." C.B. McCullough was president of this association. Later on the City Council had Fleming Durham build a hand engine called "Madison." a company calling themselves the "United" took charge of her, but when the big fire came, when two churches, and business houses, corner Main & Mulberry burned, the company disbanded. Samuel H. Weatherford got 30 signatures & started the Fair Play Fire Co. No. 1, the 1st regularly incorporated fire company. They had both engines, the Alpha & Madison. At a trial out on the north end of Main (now Jefferson) the dissatisfied members withdrew and formed the "Twos" with engine "Madison". Soon the "Threes" were organized in the west end by Joseph Crawford & Joseph T. Brashears. The "Twos" purchased a new engine in Cincinnati and returned the Madison to the One's, who loaned it to the Threes.

Article "An Ancient City of Saluda, New London."

MADISON WEEKLY HERALD.

Jan. 31, 1889.

"An ancient city of Saluda."

Hon. W.H. English sent the Courier the following advertisement which he found in the Western Sun, published at Vincennes, July 29th, 1815, in relation to the sale of lots in the town of New London, Jefferson County;

NEW LONDON

Lots will be sold in the town of New London, Thursday the 10th of August next; sale to commence at 9 o'clock A.M. This town is elegantly situated on the Ohio River, I.T. 10 miles below Madison, and thirty-five above the falls of the Ohio, (at the place formerly known by the name of Monroe's and Duncan's Ferry). This town has the advantage of all the towns in the Territory for good landings for boats. A large road now engaged to be cut sixty feet wide leading through Lexington, I.T. and to all the White River & Wabash country. This town has a large and extensive fertile country on both sides of the Ohio and no doubt will become the key of the Indiana Territory for business. A great many other advantages can be seen on the day of the sale.

The lengthy credit of two years, viz; One half at the expiration of one year & the other half at the expiration of two years will be given. Due attendance of the town of New London will be given on the day of the sale by

B.W. HUNT
Proprietor.

N.B. Merchants bringing Goods on to the town back of New London, can be accommodated with a Warehouse.

New London, July 7, 1815.

The land where this great metropolis was to have been built 74 yrs. ago, is now owned by James H. Lee, & is called Riverside, just as his brother, Frank, calls his beautiful home a few miles further down the river on the Kentucky side, "Freedom's Home."

There is not a vestige left of this ancient town of New London. The greater part of the town site where so many busy feet have trod is now a part of the river bed, owing to the carving in of the river bank. We have often heard old men who knew the place 50 yrs. ago, speak of the changes. The late Samuel B. Wells, who founded the town of Mechanicsburg in 1820, has told the writer many things of interest about New London. Mechanicsburg was quite a city 50 yrs. ago, but is all gone at present. It was a stopping place between New London & Lexington, near the present postoffice of Chelsea, in Saluda twp. Lexington, in Scott Co., was as early as 1815, a great southern metropolis on account of the salt-wells which were opened in 1814, and furnished all the surrounding settlements with that necessary article. A half mile east of Lexington was built the 1st brick house perhaps in the state. It was built in 1807 by an old man, noted as a great infidel. When his dogs died he gave them human burial, & requested that he be buried between them, which was done. A cedar tree marks his grave, but there is not even a brick left of his house.

DANIEL WEBSTER.

His visit to Madison in 1837, copied from the Courier of Dec. 19, 1903. It was copied from the "Republican Banner" of June 7, 1837.

"Daniel Webster visited our town on Thursday last. Notice had been given the day previous of the probable time of his arrival. A gun from the Ben Franklin as she swept gracefully round the point gave notice of his approach, and was answered by a gun from the shore, and the last of the old national salute was echoing from hill and glen as the Franklin reached the wharf.

Mr. Webster was immediately waited on by the committee appointed to receive him, and attended by them, a committee of invitation from Cincinnati, and several gentlemen from Louisville, he landed amidst the cheers of the assembled multitude.

He was seated in an elegant barouche, supported by Governor Hendricks & John King, proceeded at once to the place appointed for his reception, an arbor erected at the north end of the market house, fronting the large area formed by the intersection of Main & Main Cross (now Jefferson & Main) streets, and tastefully decorated with shrubbery, evergreen, wreaths and flowers.

In the background appeared portraits of Washington and Lafayette, the Declaration of Independence and several other appropriate badges and emblems, while in front a flag floated proudly on the breeze, bearing for its motto the ever memorable sentiment with which he concluded his immortal speech in defense of the Constitution.

"Liberty and Union, now and forever, one & inseparable".

When the procession arrived, Mr. Webster ascended the stand in the arbor, supported by Governor Hendricks, and committee of arrangements, when he was properly and eloquently introduced by J.G. Marshall. To which he responded in a speech of an hour's length.

The names of the Committee of Reception were;
W. Lyle, W. J. McClure, William F. Collum, A. F. Pitcher,
James E. Lewis, D. L. McClure.
Messrs. Wharton & Payne were the Marshalls for the day.

Evening Herald, Sept. 23, 1886.

The following information was given to us by Mr. Rolla Doolittle. John Sering was Madison's first postmaster. He held the position until Jackson was elected President in 1828, and he kept the office in the building now owned by Charles Gertz, on the corner of Main & Jefferson.

Mr. Sering was succeeded by Mr. James H. Cowden, who was appointed by President Jackson. He moved the office to a building which stood in the northwest corner of what is now the Court House yard, across Main St. from Gertz's. Mr. Cowden was re-appointed by President VanBuren in 1837, when he moved the office to the corner of West & Third St. now occupied by the Madison Insurance Company.

Mr. Cowden was succeeded by Mr. Andrew Collins, who was appointed by President Tyler in 1841. He moved the office to a building which was on Main St. opposite the Grand Opera House.

Mr. Collins was succeeded by Mr. Rolla Doolittle, who was appointed by President Polk in 1845. He removed the office to the Madison Insurance building, corner West & Second St.

Mr. Doolittle was succeeded by Mr. C.P.J. Arion, who was appointed by President Taylor in 1849. He moved the office to the Fireman's Insurance building on Second St. Mr. Arion's term expiring in 1852, Mr. Doolittle was reappointed, this time by President Pierce. He moved the office to the Melodian building (now the Odd Fellow's building.) At the expiration of his term in 1857 Mr. Doolittle was appointed his own successor by President Buchanan.

In 1861, Mr. Lincoln having been elected President, he appointed Mr. Victor King. During the administration of President Johnson, Mr. W.E. McLellan and then Mr. Charles Shrewsbury were postmasters. When President Grant became President, he appointed Mr. Christopher Coffin in 1869.

In 1874, President Grant appointed Mr. M.C. Garber, and he was succeeded by Mr. John W. Linck, who was appointed by President Garfield.

In 1885 President Cleveland appointed Mr. M.A. Barnett, the first Democrat appointed since Mr. Doolittle. A complete new outfit was purchased, which was set up in the Niklaus block, where the office is now located.

Herald of Sept. 28, 1886.

Information from Mr. Rolla Doolittle, given from memory, so is not complete.

The first paper published in the city was The Eagle, which was established in 1816 by John Benham. He was the publisher & Governor William Hendricks was the editor.

The Indiana Republican, a Whig paper, was established in 1820 by Arion & Lodge, and was purchased in 1840 by D.D. Jones and John Lodge, by whom it was published until 1847. The name was then changed to Republican-Banner and afterwards to the Banner.

The Madison Tribune, a Whig paper, was established in 1850, by Milton Gregg and John Sering.

The Madison Herald, a Democratic paper, was established in 1832 by Nathaniel Bolton and J.S. Williams.

The Madison Courier, a Democratic paper, was established in 1839 by Rolla Doolittle, and published by him eight years, at the end of which time it was purchased by M.C. Garber, by whom it was changed to a Republican paper.

The Madisonian, a Democratic paper, was established by Rolla Doolittle in 1850, who published it two years.

The Free Press, a Democratic paper, was established by Major John D. Simpson, in 18__. It burned a couple of years later, while the Major was a member of the Legislature, and was not re-established. He established the Madison Daily and Weekly Star, a Republican paper in 1876, which paper he published until his death.

The Madison Progress, a Democratic paper, was established the same year by Nicholas Manville, and published by him until his death, at which time the office was purchased by the Democratic County Central Committee, by whom the name was changed to The Madison Herald. The Herald was purchased by Mr. M.A. Barnett, our present postmaster, over four years ago, from L.C. Jones, and he still owns it. He started the Daily in January, 1884.

Notes from Pioneer History of Madison. Article #3 by
The Wanderer.

In 1805 Jesse Vawter & John Reece, elders in the Baptist church, with John Vawter, a son of Jesse, and others from Franklin & Scott Co. Ky. came to the site of Madison. Some came by land, others in a pirogie down the Kentucky & Ohio. They returned in 1806 & made permanent settlements, all locating on the uplands nor north of Madison.

The Vawter family came in 1806 in Sept. & in March following Col. John Vawter brought his family & located on the site of the railroad shops in North Madison. Col. Vawter was the first Justice of the Peace in what is now Jefferson Co. then Clark, his commission dated July 16, 1808. He was also the first Sheriff, taking office in 1811 & serving two years. In 1812 he removed from his farm to Madison, and in 1815 to Vernon, thence to Morgantown, where he resided till his death, Aug. 17, 1862.

In 1807 William & John Hall settled on the bottom lands above the site of the old tanyard (Ross); about a year later they sold out to Jonathan Lyon.

Mr. Lyon's cabin stood near the corner of First & Harrison St. His mother-in-law, Mrs. Slack, died soon after Lyon settled on the Hall improvement, her's being the first death in the settlement. Funeral preached by Elder Jesse Vawter, in a cottonwood grove on the bank of the river. The remains were interred in the pioneer graveyard on the bank of the town near the corner of Ferry St. in what is now East Madison. It is said the coffin was made from a large log split in halves and scooped out like a trough. Then the body was placed in the deeper half and the top was afterward made secure with large wooden pins driven into holes bored with an augur at the ends and sides.

John Henry Wagner and family, "Pennsylvania Dutch", were from Chambersburg, Pa. Children were Louis, George, John, Samuel, Katie & Jane, and Phebe, who was born after they came here. Landed at foot of Jefferson St. May 8, 1808, Chose site where the Schofield home now stands. on First & Jefferson. Mr. Wagner, a Blacksmith. Sold shop to son George & John Sering, and moved north 3 miles in 1813, thence further north, and then to Jennings Co. Returned here before his death.

Robert M. Trotter & Joshua Wilkenson came in 1808. Wilkenson married in 1829 & moved to Mooresville, Ind. Trotter was a J.P. appointed by Governor Harrison in 1812 while the Governor was sitting in front of John Booth's tavern.

Joseph Strickland came in 1808 and was one of the pioneer justices. His daughter, who married William Briggs, is believed to have been the first white child born on the site of the village. She is now a resident of Chicago.

John Booth & Isaac D. Schofield came about the same time as Strickland. Booth opened the first tavern in Madison.

In 1809 came John Paul & John Sering in 1810. Then we find the names of Samuel Burnett, Charles Eastin, Alex A. Meek, Wm. Hendricks, Henry Restine, S. C. Stephens, John & Nathaniel Hunt, Dr. Israel T. Canby, John McIntire, R. C. Talbott, Wm. Cole, Oliver Lewis, Isaac Eudaily, John Lodge, C. P. J. Arion, Thomas T. Stribling, Michael & Henry Shannon, Milton Stapp, George M. Leonard, Jeremiah Sullivan, Dr. Robert Cravens, Alois Bachman, William Kirk, Alexander Kennedy, John Coleman, Eugene O'Daly, Wm. Carpenter, Beaumont & Moody Park.

Notes from Pioneer History of Madison. No. 5. The Wanderer.

During the War of 1812 Madison received quite an addition to its population. In my last article I mentioned several pioneers who located in the village in the first & second years of that memorable struggle against the same old foe of liberty that some of them had fought in the Revolution.

Dr. Israel T. Canby came to Madison while the War of 1812 was in progress. He erected a brick house--one of the first, if not the first in the village--on the corner of Broadway & 2d Sts, where he lived for many years. The late Dr. John Mullen occupied it at the time of his death. It is one of the oldest houses in the city, and one of the few landmarks connecting the pioneer days of Madison with the ever eventful & changing present. General Richard Canby, killed in the Modoc War in 1873, was a son of Dr. Canby, and was born and reared in Madison.

During this period there came to the village from Baltimore, Md. an Irishman whose name is closely associated with its early history. Who amongst the older citizens of your town does not remember John McIntire? He was a native of Ireland, but immigrated to Baltimore, Md. in his boyhood, where he grew up & married Miss Eliza Hall, a native of that city. He there engaged in the merchandising & shipping business, & thus accumulated considerable wealth. From Baltimore he came West to Cincinnati, and after a business career of a few years in that city, was advised by Wm. Hendricks to remove to Madison, which he did in 1814. He subsequently purchased the interest of Jonathan Lyon in the original town plat, & started a general store which he operated several years, though he was principally engaged in looking after his large landed interests in Madison & vicinity. In April 1817, he was appointed County Treasurer, the security required at that time being only $2000. The duties of that position evidently did not suit him, for he resigned the following month, & was succeeded by Joseph Oglesby, a local preacher of the M. E. Church. Mr. McIntire died May 17, 1850; his widow survived him five years. Three children were living at the time of his decease, only one of whom, Mrs. Sarah A. Burke, of Madison, now survives.

Richard C. Talbott came to Madison from Pennsylvania late in 1814, or early in the following year. He first served as clerk of the Board of Commissioners, & in 1817 succeeded Col. John Paul, as Clerk & Recorder of Jefferson County, which position he filled for many years. He built and lived in the Allison residence, corner Central Ave. & 2d Sts. Talbott was a soldier of the War of 1812, and a very popular & efficient county officer, serving up to the time of his death.

William Cole opened a tannery in 1815 on the site of the old Ross tanyard. He, however, did not remain long in the village, but removed to the country, after a few years of town life.

Oliver Lewis, a native of Hartford, Conn., & a veteran of the War of 1812, brought his family to Madison late in the autumn of 1815, & took up his residence on Third St. between Jefferson & Walnut Sts. In the spring of 1816 they removed to a cabin previously occupied by Jonathan Lyon, & two years afterwards to a farm four miles east of town, now occupied by Mr. Wolf. Some ten years after, Mr. Lewis returned to Madison, where he died of cholera in July, 1835. His sons, James & Edward, are well known residents of your city, the former being recognized as a delightful authority on the thrilling events of the prehistoric period. Since writing the above, however, we learn that Mr. James E. Lewis died June 9, 1888.

One of the oldest & best known citizens of Madison, is the venerable Isaac Eudaily. He was born in Charlotte Co. Va. Mar. 31, 1791; removed to Tennessee in 1810, & arrived in Madison, Jan. 14, 1816. He was married in the village the following July to Mary Briggs, a sister of the late Captain John Kirk's mother, & located on West Third St. clearing the primitive forest trees off the lot, & erecting thereon a hewed log house, where he & his young bride commenced their married life. Mr. Eudaily is a shoemaker, & followed his trade until the infirmities of a ripe old age forced him to give up manual labor. He also kept the toll on the Michigan pike, above Madison, seventeen years, and that on the Brooksbury road for eight years. His wife died in November, 1835, age 89 yrs after a happy married life extending over 69 years & 4 months. Mr. Eudaily survives her at the advanced age of 99 yrs. He is the oldest person in Madison, and doubtless the oldest in Jefferson County.

In the spring of 1816 John Lodge, a Kentuckian, & Col. C.P.J. Arion came to the village & soon purchased the Weekly Eagle. They changed the name to the Western Sun & Indiana Register, and subsequently to The Indiana Republican, under which title it was published for many years. Lodge married a sister of Col. Arion in the spring of 1817. After retiring from the newspaper business, he embarked in merchandising, & afterwards was employed as a conductor on the Madison & Indpls Railroad. While thus engaged he was killed by accident, Nov. 14, 1845.

Col. Arion erected the building now occupied by Mrs. S.E. Reese, on the east side of Mulberry St. He established the first bookstore in the town in the front room of that house. The rear room was occupied by the printing office, over which Mr. Lodge presided.

The office & store were subsequently moved to a building on Main St. also erected by Col. Arion, and now used by Julius Schmidt as a saloon.

Thomas T. Stribling became Sheriff of the County in 1816, succeeding James Vawter, & though spending most of his time in Madison, lived on his farm in the country. He finally removed to Tennessee & died there. One of his sons is a prominent manufacturer in Madison and a well known citizen of your county.

William Shannon & family, consisting of his wife, Mary, & five children; William, John, Michael, Margaret & Edward, all natives of Ireland, came to Madison in 1816, & took up their abode on the southwest corner of Main & Jefferson St. where Nicholas Horuff's dry goods house now stands. Here Mr. Shannon opened a general store. He also carried on coopering & blacksmithing in the village up to the time of his death in 1820. The Shannons were the first Catholics who settled in Madison, & the parents & most of the children died in the faith of their fathers. William Shannon possessed a good education & died Nov. 10, 1846. The parents, with their sons, William & John, were interred in the old Third St. graveyard, and the rest of the family in Springdale. Michael is perhaps the best remembered of Wm. Shannon's children, as he was, for many years quite prominently connected with the material development of the town. One of Edward Shannon's sons was a member of the firm of Mellen & Shannon, and was quite an energetic young business man. Henry Shannon, a brother of William, immigrated to Madison, the same year as the latter, but nothing is known of him except that he lived in the village a few years. He no doubt moved away at an early date.

One of the oldest active business men of Madison is C. Vail, as he is also one of your best known citizens. Mr. Vail first saw the light in Ohio, Mar. 30, 1811, and came to the site of Milton, Ky. with his widowed mother in the spring of 1816. In 1829 he began to learn the cabinet making with Henry Kritz, whose shop was on Second St. on the site of the Madison Woolen Mills. He has ever since continued in the active duties of his calling, and is no doubt good yet for many a hard pull.

George M. Leonard, a native of Massachusetts, took up his residence in the town in 1816. He was one of the most energetic, prominent & successful merchants of his time. His brother, Linus, also, was one of the pioneers of the town.

Two of the most prominent settlers of the period succeeding the War of 1812 were Dr. Robert Cravens & Capt. Jeremiah Sullivan, better known as Judge Sullivan, who came to Madison in the fall of 1816. Though the descendants of Dr. Cravens have filled, and still occupy an honored place in the social & material interests of the city, he was destined to spend but a few short years in his adopted home ere death claimed him as its victim. Five years after locating in the village he was borne to the grave. He married a daughter of Col. John Paul, who bore him one son, now the Hon. John R. Cravens, whose enterprise & public spirit are synonymous with the growth & prosperity of his native city. Both in private & public life he has reflected credit upon an honored ancestry.

and is today one of the recognized & trusted leaders of the Indiana Democracy--the party of Jefferson, Jackson, Benton, Tilden, Hendricks, Thurman & Cleveland. Dr. Cravens died Sept. 13, 1831, age 26 yrs, thus passing away in the prime & vigor of young manhood. His widow married Dr. Goode, and after his death, the Rev. Stevenson, whom she survived several years.

Hon. Jeremiah Sullivan was born in Virginia, July 21, 1794, and was the only son of Timothy & Margaret Sullivan. The former was an Irish Catholic who married a non-Catholic wife after immigrating to the "Old Dominion". Young Sullivan was baptized & reared in the Catholic faith, but ere reaching manhood he entered William & Mary College, a Protestant institution, where he gradually lost the religion of his paternal ancestors. He chose the law for a profession, but before his admission to practice he enlisted in the War of 1812, and finally won a Captain's commission for gallantry in front of the enemy. On the close of the war he resumed his law studies & was admitted to the bar. In the autumn of 1816 he started on horseback, in company with Dr. Robert Cravens, to seek a location for the wider exercise of his legal talents, intending to make Louisville, Ky. his point of destination, but on reaching Cincinnati, he learned of a good field for a lawyer at Madison, Ind. So he changed his mind, as wise men sometimes do, & with Dr. Cravens, came on to the embryo city 'neath the hills, & hung out his shingle. This was the real starting point in the legal & political career of Judge Sullivan. Had he gone to Louisville, it is very doubtful that he would have gained the prominence in public life that he afterwards won in the vigorous young state, admitted into the Union soon after he cast his lot with her fortunes.

In due time Judge Sullivan became recognized as a bright, well-read lawyer, & finally won & retained a large share of the legal business of this section of the State. In March, 1817, he was appointed Prosecuting Attorney, & in 1820 was elected to the Legislature, & re-elected for several successive terms. To him belongs the honor of naming the capitol of the state, the present name being proposed by him, and on his motion, accepted & adopted by the Legislature then in session at Corydon. Higher honors, however, were yet in store for him. In 1836 he was chosen to a seat on the Supreme Bench of Indiana, & served with ability & distinction from 1836 to 1846. During this period he earned a bright & lasting fame on the roll of distinguished lights of his adopted state. Upon retiring from the Supreme Bench, Judge Sullivan resumed practice in Madison which he continued until 1869, when he was appointed Judge of the Criminal Court of Jefferson County. At the succeeding election he was chosen as his own successor for a full term, but died Dec. 6, 1870, ere taking the oath of office.

Judge Sullivan's parents followed him to Madison, where his father died about 1828, & his mother in 1845. He married Charlotte R. Cutler, born May 10, 1798, who died June 15, 1875, surviving her husband nearly five years. Of their children, Jeremiah, Jr. is a Colonel in the regular army; Algernon S. is a prominent lawyer of New York City; Mrs. John H. Sullivan is a resident of Louisville, Ky.; and the youngest daughter is living in the state of New York.

Judge Sullivan joined the Masonic order before coming to Madison, & continued an active Mason until the killing of Morgan brought on the anti-Masonic crusade, when he severed all affiliations with secret societies. He afterwards united with the Presbyterian church, & died in that faith. Politically he was successively a Whig & a Republican, but seldom took any part in politics after his election to the Supreme Bench. Tall, well-proportioned, of commanding mien & dignified manners, he was nevertheless one of the most courteous & affable of the members of the pioneer bar. Though his mind was cast in a judicial mould, he also possessed considerable literary talent, & was quite a local celebrity as a humorous & satirical writer.

Alois Bachman settled in Madison in 1816-17. He was a German-Catholic; & opened a bakery & saloon on the site of Charles Bach's tailorshop. He sold out in 1830 to Caleb Schmidlapp, a German from Cincinnati, who continued the business for about 20 years. Mr. Bachman was married at Vevay, & his wife, Emily, died in 1850. He survived her ten years, dying Nov. 10, 1860. Their only son, Col. Alois Bachman, was killed in the Rebellion, & the G.A.R. Post in your city was named in honor of this gallant soldier. It is proper that the memory of the dead should be perpetuated in naming the patriotic institutions. But is it not sad to see them often prostituted for political ends, & their noble aims forgotten in the hungry scramble for office & unsoldierly clamor for illegal pensions—from each of which the pension shark must have his "pound of flesh."

William Kirk & family removed from Ohio to Kentucky, & thence to Indiana, coming to Madison in 1817. He was a shoemaker by trade, but also worked at carpentering, & was killed in 1820 or 1821, by a falling piece of timber during the erection of the old octagon brick Court House. He left a widow & three sons & two daughters to mourn his untimely death. His son, Capt. John Kirk, was one of the prominent men of the town for years, and some of his descendants are among your active business men.

Alexander Kennedy, an Irishman, & family came in the fall of 1817. His sons, Matthew, Ephraim & George, were among John Coleman's pupils at the night school opened by that pioneer teacher in his tavern in the twenties. Matthew Kennedy is still one of the active citizens of Madison, & when I was there he was filling the office of constable.

John Coleman was an Irish Catholic, who came to Madison with his sister, Mary, in 1817-18, & settled on First St., between Jefferson & Mulberry. He possessed a fine education for those days, & soon after coming he opened a school at the house of Alois Bachman, his sister sometimes assisting him in teaching the youth who attended. Late in 1819 William Shannon purchased from the county the old two-storied, buckeye log court house for $60, & removed it to the site of Charles Hagedon's harness shop, Main St. Mr. Coleman rented this building, & in May, 1820, was granted license to open a tavern. In the upper story of this tavern was held, about 1821-22, the second Catholic service in the village, by a missionary priest from Cincinnati. About this time Coleman & his sister started a night school in one of the rooms of this old temple of justice, which was patronized by the Shannons, Kennedys, Bachman, & others. Mr. Coleman was also engaged in the manufacture of cigars in partnership with Eugene O'Daly. They shipped the cigars via flatboat to Louisville, where they sold them at the very low price of $1 per thousand. Prior to 1828 Mr. Coleman removed to Floyd Knobs, near New Albany, Ind. where he continued his vocation of teacher for many years. He died there, in 1880 or 1881, a nonagenarian.

A Mr. O'Keefe, also an Irish Catholic, settled on the Curmin's farm west of the village, about the same time that the Coleman's took up their residence in Madison. O'Keefe had a wife & three children when he came here, but all removed to Floyd Knobs soon after Mr. Coleman settled at that point.

Eugene O'Daly was another settler of this period, coming to Madison in 1819. He was a native of County Louth, Ireland, & a member of the Catholic church. He married, after his arrival in America, Sarah Stephenson, a native of County Meath, Ireland, where she knew the Duke of Wellington, who was born & reared not far from her home. She crossed the Atlantic in the same ship with the celebrated Herman Blennerhasset. He afterward became entangled in the visionary schemes of the talented, though unprincipled Aaron Burr, known in history as "the Burr Conspiracy". Mr. O'Daly was a man of good education & could speak & write fluently in both the English & Irish languages. During his residence in Madison he was principally engaged in the manufacture of cigars, being associated with John Coleman in that enterprise. He removed with Mr. Coleman to Floyd Knobs, & there spent the remaining years of his life.

William Carpenter was an eccentric yet talented lawyer of Irish birth, who came to Madison from Kentucky prior to 1820. He prosecuted his profession quite successfully for some years, but finally became very dissipated & lost his practise & professional standing. After he had become a slave to strong drink he was refused admittance to a mock congress of lawyers that convened at the court house, & was very much incensed over such unexpected treatment from his professional brethren. With that patient determination that characterized him during his more prosperous days, he awaited, in the hall outside the door, the close of the congress, & then requested the favor of addressing the meeting. The request was gladly granted, for Carpenter was recognized as a witty & talented speaker, & those present expected a rare treat. They received, however, more than they had bargained for. After speaking for some time, & unmercifully castigating the members of the bar for debarring him from the room because of his unfortunate bad habit, he drew a vivid picture of bygone days, when many of those present, whom he pointed out disdainfully, had fawningly received favors from him whom they now sought to degrade. He spoke in a strain of eloquent pathos that captured many of his brethren & closed his address with the following apt illustration;

"When fortune smiles upon us,
We ride in chaises;
But when misfortune comes
We walk, Be Jusus!"

Carpenter lived on Poplar Lane, & finally went back to Kentucky, where the latter years of his life were spent.

Beaumont & Moody Park located in Madison about 1820. They were natives of Massachusetts. The former was one of the pioneer school teachers of the town. He began teaching in the old academy soon after coming to the village, & prosecuted his profession in the same building for ten or twelve years, when he was appointed to a professorship in Bloomington College.

Moody Park established a cotton mill in 1822-23, on the west side of Central Ave. above Front St. which he operated a few years, & then brought out Thomas Gibbs to take charge of it. This mill was operated by John & Victor King in 1830. Mr. Park was the first Mayor of the town. His widow is yet (1887) a resident of Madison.

Among other early settlers whose names deserve a place in this connection, were Dr. Drake, who opened the first drug-store in the village; McCabe & Co. & Mr. Clarkston, merchants; Milton Stapp, a well remembered merchant & lawyer, & J. P. D. Lanier, a lawyer & banker, who removed to New York & became a millionaire. Then there was old Dr. Fisk, the first resident physician, who died in Madison, followed by Drs. James Hicks, John Howes, & David H. Maxwell, in the order named. These attended to the physical ills of the community during the earlier years of its history, & were in time supplanted by others who are better remembered by the present generation.

The pioneer resident preachers might also be mentioned here. The first of these were Elder Jesse Vawter & John Reece, the 1st settlers, who located on the uplands north of Madison, & who are mentioned in Article 3 of this series. They belonged to the Baptist Church, as did also their successors, John Taylor & Philemon Vawter.

Rev. Patrick Brown, one of those eccentric, pioneer Methodist itinerants, settled on Rykers Ridge prior to the War of 1812, & occasionally exhorted for his brethren in the village. About this time the Methodists erected a small church, & Rev. Joseph Oglesby, a local M.E. preacher, came soon after & took charge of the little class. In May 1817 he was appointed County Treasurer. Rev. Strange also ministered to the spiritual wants of the Methodists at quite an early date. In 1819 Rev. Gamaliel Taylor removed to Madison with his family, & preached for the Methodists for many years. He resided in the town until his death in 1856. He has descendants living in Madison.

Rev. William Robinson & family came to the village in 1819, in company with Rev. Taylor. Mr. Robinson was a minister of the Presbyterian faith. He was born in Ireland in 1780, immigrated to Baltimore, Md. in 1800, & there married, & thence came westward to seek a location. He preached for the Presbyterians of Jefferson County several years. In 1826 he removed to Pittsburg, Pa. but soon after returned to Madison with his son-in-law, John Alling, who followed him to Pittsburg, to marry his daughter, Miss Jane Robinson, & lived an active useful life until his decease in 1834. Some of his descendants are among your best known & useful citizens.

In writing about the pioneers of Madison, I have tried faithfully to mention all who could be classed under that heading. Yet I have, no doubt, omitted the names of a few early settlers which some of your older citizens may be able to supply, ere they are lost midst the rubbish of forgotten things.

In 1816 Madison is said to have contained 4 brick buildings, 20 frame structures & about 100 log cabins. The village continued to improve until the sickly seasons of 1820 & 1821, when the times became stringent, the people discouraged, and for about four years business was completely prostrated. But in the spring of 1824 the epidemic disappeared; times began to grow bright, improvements began, & a new ere of prosperity continued for several years. In 1834 Madison contained a population of 2500, and when incorporated in 1838, had nearly 4000 inhabitants.

The Wanderer.

The Weekly Herald, Oct. 24, 1889. Article 4. The Wanderer.

The original town of Madison extended back over a period of nearly four score years. It was laid out by John Paul, Jonathan Lyon, & Lewis David in 1811, & the plot recorded on June 1, 1812. It embraces that portion of the city extending from First(then High) to Fourth(then called Back), & from East to West Street. On the 8th of July, 1815, the first addition to the town was laid out by John Paul, Lewis Davis, & Jacob Burnett of Cincinnati, & is in that section lying between West & Broadway, from First to Fourth. In 1815-16 John McIntire purchased Lyon's interest, the latter removing to Salem, Indiana. Subsequently additions were made by different parties in 1817, 1822, 1824 & 1826.

Pre-eminent among these enterprising pioneers connected with the founding & development of Madison, stands the name of Col. John Paul. He was a native of Chester Co. Pa. born in 1758, & served under Clark in the capture of the posts on the Mississippi & Wabash, spoken of in my first article. He thus became familiar with the vast territory lying between the Ohio & Mississippi Rivers, & doubtless made up his mind to possess some of its fertile lands whenever they were opened for settlement, for we find him locating on the site of Xenia, Ohio, early in the present century. In 1809 he sold his land at that point & purchased the site of New Albany, Indiana. He was not, however, altogether pleased with his new purchase & before making a permanent settlement he disposed of it & bought the principal portion of the fertile little valley whereon Madison stands, paying for it at the rate of $2.50 per acre.

Col Paul located here in 1809 & two years afterwards was instrumental in having the town laid out & named in honor of the 4th President of the United States. And even today the majority of its citizens are adherents of the same party & principles of which President Madison was such an able exponent & defender. In 1810 Col Paul was elected to the Territorial Legislature, representing Clark County before the election of Jefferson. He was also the first Clerk & Recorder of Jefferson County, & in that office served from 1811 to 1817. The first deed was placed on record by Col Paul, Nov. 12, 1811.

Col. Paul was a great power in local politics, & at the first election held after the admission of Indiana into the Union he was elected State Senator. Upon the organization of the Senate he was chosen President of that body, & filled the office with creditable efficiency. He was a sound, successful business man, was President of the "Farmers & Mechanics' Bank" of Madison, & a leader of all the public enterprises of his day in Madison. It was he who furnished the greater portion of the "sinews of war" to establish the Western Eagle in 1813-the first newspaper in your town. William Hendricks, who afterward became his son-in-law, was the first editor of the Eagle.

Col. Paul's wife, Sarah T. was born in Baltimore Co. Md. Mar. 10, 1765, & died May 9, 1866, She survived her husband 36 years, his death occurring June 6, 1830, at the age of 72 yrs. Their son, John P. married Elizabeth, only daughter of Alexander Meek, who died in 1833. He survived her two years. Mrs. Sallie Hendricks, widow of Hon. William Hendricks, the last surviving child of Col Paul, died at the old homestead in Madison about a year ago, at the advanced age of nearly 90 years. Your enterprising townsman, Hon. John R. Cravens, is a grandson of Col. Paul.

Contemporary with Col. Paul, was John Sering, who came from Ohio to the site of Madison in 1810. He was a native of Pennsylvania, & one of the most progressive & enterprising business men of his adopted town. Mr. Sering established the first store in the village & for several years was one of the best known merchants on the river. He was the first Treasurer of Jefferson County, & served continuously by appointment up to 1817. Upon the organization of the "Farmers & Mechanics' Bank" in 1816, Mr. Sering was chosen Cashier, & filled that position for about 4 years. This was the 1st banking institution established in the state, as at that time Madison was the most important & prosperous town in Indiana.

Mr. Sering was also the 1st Postmaster of Madison, the office being in a small frame building near the corner of Main & Jefferson st. now the property of Charles Gertz-the recognized facsimile of the affable & popular John Andy Zuck. When I was in Madison Hon. John W. Linck was occupying the same room as a law office. Mr. Sering married Miss Ruth Grover, niece of Col. Paul. He died at Logansport, Ind. Oct. 24, 1845, while on a visit to that town. Four children, two sons & two daughters, are residents of Madison.

Samuel Burnett built a log cabin in 1810-11 on Main st., where the Masonic Temple now stands, & opened "a place of refreshment for man & beast". The "refreshments" for men was principally of the liquid order, & when imbibed too freely was apt to make "beasts" out of them. But those were the good old days the octogenarian never tires of speaking about the days of "cheap, pure whiskey" that he delights to ruminate over, as with a far-away, wistful expression on his weather-beaten face & an unctuous smack of his quivering lips, earnestly he explains; "That was whiskey, my friends, not poison". In 1812-13 Burnett's charges, as regulated by law, were as follows; Whiskey, peach brandy & cherry bounce, per $\frac{1}{2}$ pint, 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents, 18 $\frac{3}{4}$ ths cents, & 18 $\frac{3}{4}$ ths cents respectively; meals 25 cents each; lodging per night "in a good bed" 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents; horse to hay 24 hours, 25 cents; oats or corn, per gallon, 12 $\frac{1}{2}$ cents.

The first term of court in Jefferson County was held in Burnett's tavern. This is disputed by a few of your old citizens, but in a subsequent article I will establish the truth of my statement so clearly as to sweep away forever the unsupported tradition that to either the Wagner or Booth cabins belongs the honor of being the first temporary temple of justice in Madison.

Charles Eastin came in 1811-12, but after a few years removed to New Washington & there died. Some of his children are now residents of Illinois.

Alexander Meek was the first resident lawyer of Madison & also the first prosecuting attorney of the county. He located in the village in 1811-12, & spent the balance of his life here. He lived on First St. in the rear of the site of the Fireman & Mechanics Insurance Building. Mr Meek reared 3 sons & 1 daughter, the latter marrying John P. Paul, son of Col. Paul. His youngest son, Fielding V. Meek, became an eminent geologist & was for many years preceding his death connected with the Smithsonian Institute, in Washington, D.C.

Hon. William Hendricks was perhaps the most prominent public man in the early history of Madison. In fact, no other resident of the town has filled as many high positions of trust & honor, or taken such a leading part in the legislative history of the state & nation. The name has been made illustrious by several wealthy scions of the family, whom your great state has loved to honor with the highest positions in her gift, while the American people has twice elected one of them to the office of Vice-president of the U.S. Thus, it would seem there is something in a name.

Mr. Hendricks was a native of Westmoreland Co. Pa. read law in Cincinnati, & was there admitted to practice. In 1812 he settled in Madison, & the next year was engaged to edit the Western Eagle, established in 1813 by Col. Paul & a few other progressive citizens of the village, to supply a long felt want. In 1816 Mr. Hendricks represented Jefferson Co. in the convention that met at Corydon, to form a State Constitution, & was secretary of that body through out its session of 19 days. At the first State election in Aug. 1816, he was elected to Congress; was Governor of the State from 1822 to 1825, & subsequently served two terms in the U.S. Senate. He was a natural politician, & wielded a powerful influence in the councils of his party, as well as in the halls of legislature.

Senator Hendricks married Miss Sallie, daughter of Col. John Paul, who died in 1833 at the old homestead on Frist St., Madison at a ripe old age. He preceded her to the grave nearly forty years, dying May 16, 1850. Like many other public men of his time he selected his burial place in a rugged, beautiful spot far away from the haunts of business, where in a plain substantial stone vault rests his mortal remains. His last resting place is about two miles north of Madison and can be plainly seen from the public road. (the remains have been moved since.) One son, Parker, is a resident of Madison.

Henry Restine, a German, settled on the site of the Dietz tanyard in 1812, & carried on a tanyard there a few years. He also ran a tavern, but removed to Crawfordsville, Ind. at an early date.

Stephen C. Stephens came from Kentucky to Madison in June, 1813, & erected a one story frame building on the south side of Main St. wherein he started a small general store. He served under Jackson at New Orleans, & was wounded in that battle. In 1817 he was admitted to the bar, & many years later was one of the supreme Judges of Indiana. Soon after his admission to practice he removed to Vevay, & was cashier of the Farmers & Mechanics Bank of that town. After some years Judge Stephens returned to Madison & resided here till his death Nov. 7, 1869. His remains were interred in Springdale. None of his descendants are residents of Jefferson Co.

Two brothers, John & Nathaniel Hunt, are believed to have been the most permanent settlers of the village. They were natives of Roseberry Centre, Litchfield Co. Conn. & located in Madison in Oct. 1813. John was born Apr. 19, 1769, & in early manhood taught a grammar school, & also followed agricultural pursuits. In 1793 he removed to Vermont & engaged in merchandizing. In 1804 he & his brother, Nathaniel, came westward, & purchased land four miles east of Dayton, Ohio, where they followed farming until 1810, when they went into the merchantile business, & three years later removed to Madison, where they continued their merchantile career, adding thereto the business of tanning & manufacturing tobacco.

Simeon Hunt, esq. son of John Hunt, says his father kept one of the first hotels in the city. It occupied the present site of the Masonic Temple & was called "Cross Keys". It was a large two story log structure. Money was so scarce in those days that a block of wood & an ax was kept for the purpose of cutting the silver into pieces in order to make change for the customers.

Nathaniel Hunt was a lawyer by profession & a graduate of the noted law school at Litchfield, Conn. where he was a classmate of the celebrated John C. Calhoun. He practised law after coming to Madison, & was a member of the Convention that framed the first State Constitution. At the first election after the admission of the state he was elected one of the three commissioners of Jefferson Co. Mr. Hunt was married when he came to Madison, & reared three children. He died in August 1827, & his only living child, Nathaniel, Jr. is a resident of Macon, Mo.

John Hunt was a single man when he came here, but married in 1814. He was the father of four children, only one of whom, Simeon, survives. He died May 19, 1857. The now venerable Simeon Hunt, was born in Madison July 11, 1815, & is the oldest living native male resident of the city. Mrs. Joseph Marshall, daughter of John Sering, is the oldest female resident. Mr. Hunt is one of the best & most reliable authorities on the early history of his native town. He has furnished me with considerable important information on pioneer days in Madison, that but for him would have been lost in the fading twilight of tradition.

As this article has extended beyond the limit, I must ask your readers to await my next for the continuation & completion of the sketches of those who took even a modest part in the early settlement of your historic & progressive town.

The Wanderer.

Madison Courier, May 11, 1927.

Trees in John Paul Park.

In the old cemetery were three elms, four sycamores, two hackberry & four or more maple trees, all stately trees in good condition, perhaps 75 or 100 years old & on the hillside a non-descript growth, while in the valley were quite a few large trees.

In spite of advice from many citizens, who advocated cutting down the old trees, the park committee voted unanimously to keep them for it takes many years to grow a tree large enough to give shade to even a few persons. The ground was left in its original state except for taking off a few knolls & filling inequalities.

Letters were written by John Paul Chapter to governors for a representative tree from each of the thirteen colonial states in the effort to provide historical trees for the little park. When the governor of our ancestral state sent its tree, much pleasure was felt, & still is felt, when the Connecticut pin oak, Massachusetts elms, or Virginia tulip-poplar is mentioned. Local enthusiasm caused others to become interested & to the extent that trees of note were received from many places.

The very first tree for the new park was presented & planted by J. Wilbur Cornett, & was a tulip-poplar. Later the Legislature of Indiana designated the tulip as the Indiana state tree, at which time two were already growing in the park.

The governor of Connecticut sent a pin oak which has since grown to a good sized tree; Delaware sent an elm; Governor Terrill of Georgia, a magnolia; Governor Pennybacker of Pennsylvania sent a red oak, the acorn from which this tree grew, having been picked up on the Gettysburg battlefield. It is a beautiful tree now.

Governor Warfield of Maryland, himself a son of the American Revolution, sent a beech tree, which is still growing in spite of the fact it is said a beech tree can not be moved. From Massachusetts came an elm, grafted from the original tree in Cambridge under whose shade General Washington took command of the American army on July 4, 1776. New Jersey sent a white maple; Governor Odell of New York sent an oak grown from an acorn which came from a revolutionary battlefield. An elm tree was sent from Rhode Island; a tulip poplar from Virginia. This included all the thirteen original states with the exception of New Hampshire & North Carolina, & South Carolina, from which no responses were received.

Mr. Richard Johnson wrote King Edward of England for a tree, & he had sent an English red oak, which is in good condition now, as a representative tree of our mother country. A friend in Ireland sent two red oaks.

Mr. Freeman, state secretary of the bureau of forestry, gave a maple, a sweet gum & a black gum tree. Mr. James R. Bingham gave ash, spruce, pine and laurel taken from bounty land given his great grandfather in recognition of service in the revolutionary war.

Dr. Joseph G. Rogers, superintendent of the hospital at Logansport, gave a weeping willow tree from a cutting obtained at Mt. Vernon. This tree at Mt. Vernon was grown from a cutting obtained from a tree over Napoleon's tomb at St. Helena. Friends also gave an elm tree from Fontainebleau in recognition of France's friendship in our revolutionary trouble. Others gave a Norway maple & a horse chestnut from Valley Forge. Relatives presented a chestnut tree in memory of Rev. Henry Little, an early Presbyterian minister of Madison, & another in memory of Rev. Joseph Little. A wisteria vine was given by Mr. Henry Little, presented to her by Henry Ward Beecher. Edward Powell gave a Japonica plant for a hedge, which grows besides the walk at the east end. Mrs. M.E. Cogley gave a white-cut leaf birch, which is planted near. Many other trees presented by different friends, and others have been planted by the D.A.R.'s & the C.A.R.'s.

An article from the Madison Courier, (no date)

Madison has prize trees. Some are thought to be original forest trees.

Mr. E.W. Moore, a tree doctor who has been working in this city under the direction of the state conservation commission, speaks very favorably of the old trees found here. Some of the most interesting trees in this city, of which Mr. M. said Madison people should be proud, includes a large elm on 2d St. below Central ave. in front of the David Johnson property. It is 13 feet in circumference. At the Lanier home is an elm 12.9 feet in circumference. It is located along the walk on the east side of the lot. Mr. Moore & his helper placed 8 cables on it to prevent it from splitting, & from 3,400 to 3,500 pounds of cement in its cavities. The tree is thought to be over 100 years old & was possibly one of the original forest trees.

An elm in the center of the lawn at the Lanier home measures 13.9 feet in circumference. Mr. Moore has already placed over a ton of concrete in its cavities and there are 9 more holes to fill. A large sycamore in front of the Lanier home measures 12.2 feet in circumference & is perfectly sound. There are no branches on the tree from the ground to a height of 60 feet.

Dr. Moore is a fond admirer of Madison's trees & said today that he thought they were the best in the state. While looking around over the city he came in contact with 17 catalpas at the Madison H Hotel lot, the largest of which is 12 feet in circumference & the smallest 7.7 feet. A magnolia tree in the Hannibal Danner yard, north Mulberry, measures 4.4 feet in circumference. One of the most symmetrical trees he has ever seen is a sycamore tree in the same yard, measuring 11 feet in circumference. A large catalpa at the rear of the Christ Church parish house is 14.2 feet and a persimmon tree in the Lucy Girard lot, Third St. is 6.4 feet in circumference. In the Eades & Williamson yards on West Main St. are found a maple 12.7 feet and a sycamore that measures 13.8 feet in circumference.

In the Indianapolis Star rotogravure section last spring was a picture of a 100 year old cherry tree, which stands in the back yard of the Bach home on West Main St. It has a spread of 75 feet and is 9 feet in circumference.
